

The 25th Hour 24-Hour Access to Comfort Foods

Vegas tip #13: bring a clothespin. When you need it, you'll know.

Vegas tip #432: always be prepared for the dreaded, insatiable 3am meat loaf craving.

We're going to get you through that last one...

Tuck in your napkin for Citizens Kitchen and Bar, a massive hall of comfort food open every single second of every single day, starting Friday.

Essentially, this is an all-time greatest hits collection from your mom's recipe book—baby back ribs, fried chicken, five kinds of burgers, 18-hour roasted prime rib... Okay, maybe Mom never made it around to that one.

And it's all served up in sort of a factory-bistro hybrid that makes it all seem, well, just right. Green brick walls, steel piping, old photos on the walls. If ever there were a place where meat loaf felt downright proper, it's this one.

You'll come in here with your buddies at hours unknown and just throw caution to your cardiologist. Chorizo-guac omelets: have at it. Beef jerkified Bloody Marias: go nuts. There's a six-man muffuletta. If you eat the whole thing yourself, it's on the house. Don't think too hard about the "Do I really want six people's worth of muffuletta?" of it all. Just chalk it up as yet another precious life experience.

Vegas is just full of those.
